About Thomas the Apostle Center:

TAC is a Christian retreat dedicated to spiritual growth. We model a way of life that cares for the people we serve and honors the environment in which we live. TAC sits on land wintered by the modern-day Shoshone and Crow Native American Tribes, along the back of the Absaroka Mountains. The property and each house eyes the historic Heart Mountain, a sacred land site for many Native American groups as well as the site for the historic Heart Mountain Japanese Internment Camp. The center was founded by the Rev. Daphne Grimes, a local Episcopal priest, in 1989. It is now run by a multi-denominational Christian board and overseen by the directors, Robert and Rebekah Mason.
